

Theo Parmakis

Theo Parmakis studied at Newark School of Violin Making (class of 2020.) He holds a long-standing interest in many types of musical instruments, and has recently been focusing on making cellos, building three over the course of his final year. At Newark, Theo also spent time on instrument repair and baroque-era construction techniques as well as bow re-hairing and repairs. Prior to attending Newark, Theo spent some time studying fretted instrument construction and maintenance including building a mandolin. He is also a keen folk music player and has taught the banjo for several years.

Theo Parmakis - Violin

Theo Parmakis - Viola

© Stamford Strings 2020